Jones is proud of his wife, and with reason, for Mrs. Jones is pretty as well as smart. She was lecturing on temperance reform, and got naturally worked up as she rehearsed the many things that should be done, but which nobody seemed ready to do. "Oh, dear!" she exclaimed, "I wish I were a man!" "I object!" exclaimed Jones, rising from his seat. It brought down the house,

The phrase "Speaking for buncombe" originated near the close of the debate on the famous "Missouri question," in the Sixteenth Congress, It lived at Waynesville, N. C., near the County of Buncombe, which formed part of his district. The old man rose to speak, while the House was impatiently calling for the "question." Several members asked him to desist, but he declared that the people of his district expected it, and he was bound to "make a speech for Buucombe."

St. Nicholas is said to have been Bishop of Myra, in Lycia, and to have died in 326 A. D. Of this personal history little or nothing is known with certainty. The young were universally taught to revere him. Silence-Speak not but what may benefit others or yourself; avoid trifling conversation. Order-Let all your things have their places; let each part of your business have its time. Resolution—Resolve to perform what you ought; perform without fail what you resolve. Frugality-Make no expense, but do good to others as yourself : that is, waste nothing. Industry-Lose no time; be always employed in something useful, but avoid all unnecessary sctions. Sincerity-Use no hurtful deceit; think innocently and justly, and, if you speak, speak accordingly. Justice -Wrong no one by doing injuries, or omitting the benefits that are your duty. Moderation-Avoid extremes; forbear resenting injuries. It happened in a rough mining town in Colorado. There was a grand ball at the ranch of Whisky Jack, a well-known character in the "diggings," and the "elite" of the district responded to the call in full force. The party was held in a rickety old barn belonging to the host, and with a few red strips of flannel, a grotesque accumulation of mountain roses, and a row of dripping candles, the appointment of the place were per-fect. My next partner was a blooming grass widow, a fresh arrival; and then I rested. I began to comment on new faces in the room. My companion in this pleasant pastime was a heavy-bearded miner, uncouth, roughly dressed, tobacco slob-bered, and very profane. This was our first meeting, and I hoped it would be the last.

"There goes a hard looking case," I whispered, as the wife of the man who killed the postmaster sailed by. "She's a bad 'un.

"Yas," replied the man, "I'd hate to have the critter step on me. What an elegant target she would make for a poor marksman!

Old Time Reformers.

It is the general opinion of the reformers of our day that they, or at most their immediate predecessors, were first in the field, and that all was darkness before. As far as suffrage is concerned, the fact that women could vote in New Jersey seventy or eighty years ago throws some doubt upon this claim. The suspicion is strengthened into conviction by an appeal to history. A Massachusetts woman has discovered that Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams, and generally his wisest counselor, as far back as 1774 wrote to him in behalf of woman's citizenship. He was at the time in at-tendance on the first Constitutional Congress at Philadelphia. She specially asked him to remember the ladies in the new code of laws and to treat them better than his ancestors had done. Mercy Otis, sister of James Otis, about the same time hit upon the since much used phrase of "inherent rights," declaring that they "belonged to all mankind, and had all been conferred on all by the God of nations." These are old authorites according to the American standard of antiquity, but we think Semiramis and women of note, must have held very much the same idea of the equality of still be studied, and "actions speak louder than words."

When the monkeys saw their enemy on a full retreat they formed in a solid body and followed huriety twenty and twenty-five cents per riedly in their wake. Sticks, stones, and every available missile was hurled age and strength. Fresh eggs three furiously at the heads of the flying sailors. In vain did they drop their prize, hoping that it might pacify their enraged pursuers. It was not so; only one water; generally boiled in summer. dropped out of the ranks to gather in its hairy embrace the unoffending object of the fray; while the others rushed on more frantically than ever. Reaching the boat, they had not time to jump in, but shoved her off from the gunwales, and crawling in only when some distance had been placed between them and their implacable foe. When they had arrived at a safe place to lie, they rested on their oars and curiously scanned the infuriated army on the beach. There appeared to be thousands of them, running up and down in wild confusion, and hurling stones far out into the water in the direction of the boat,

Blasting Without Drilling.

An Austrian engineer named Lauer has discovered a new method of disintegrating rock. The chief feature of his system is to employ a hollow cylinder like a gas pipe, and to place the dyn-amite cartridge, not as hitherto in a hole bored in a rock to be blasted, but in the cylinder in question. The cartridge only touches the surface of the rock which it is desired to shatter. The explosion of the dynamite is effected by means of electricity, and the effect is said to be greater than with the usual cartridge in a hole bored in the rock. The rock is shattered into fragments so small that a feir stream is able to wash them away without help, whereas in the case of gunpowder the rock is only split up into small blocks more or less large and troublesome to remove. The Lauer system is calculated to effect a saving of fully 40 per cent, as compared with the old system.

What the Director Said.

A Boston reporter, while in the office of the New York and Boston Dispatch Express Company, had a conversation with Mr. B. F. Larabee, one of the Directors of the company, who gave the following personal experience: "A little over a year ago I was taken sick. I did not know what the trouble was, but I continued to grow worse, and my complaint baffled the skill of my doctors. At last my symptoms developed into that terri-ble complaint, Bright's Disease, which has been pronounced incurable by all physicians. My sufferings at that time were unspeakable. I was bloated from head to foot; my heart pained me; my pulse was irregular, and I was unable to breathe except in short convulsive gasps. While suffering thus I learned of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure; and, although I had been given up to die by the prominent physicians of Boston, and they had told my friends I could not live a week, I resolved to try this remedy as a last resort. I am rejoiced to say it has effected a perfect cure in my case, and with many of my friends, who have been afflicted with kidney troubles, either of long standing or acute forms, and who, under my advice, have used this most wonderful remedy."

One of Those "Mash" Letters.

When Horace Weston, the colored banjo player of the Plantation troupe. was traveling in Europe with the Jarrett & Paimer Uncle Tom Combination, he received a large mail daily. One day he was shoving his letters to Mr. Jarrett, who was reading them to him, as he had never learned to read. Suddenly Mr. Jarrett was overcome with emotion.

"Where did you get that letter?" he asked, holding out one with the royal insignia printed on the corner, and signed by a court official.

"Dat one? Why, I've carried dat in my pocket a week.

Why, you idiot!" shouted Jarrett. "that is a command to appear before the Queen, and is worth $10,000 to the company for an advertisement."

"Is dat so?" replied Weston, " thought it was one of dem mash letters,' -New York Sun.

Swimming in Ico-Celd Water.

It has been considered impossible for a human being to swim across Grand Lake, Middle Park, Colorado. The water is cold as ice the year around, and all who attempted to swim from shore to shore were said to have perished. But the feat has recently been accomplished. While the Messrs. Stover, Sheldon, Love and Hottel were at the lake during their recent pleasure trip, a French Canadian bet $50 that he could swim across the lake. The bet was readily taken, The Frenchman prepared for the undertaking by removing his clothing and dipping in the lake until he became accustomed to the temperature of the water, and then dashed in and swam across without any apparent difficulty. He declared that he could swim back again. The feat caused great excitement among old-timers, who lost heavily .-Fort Collins Express.

Happiness is in the Strife.

The most unsatisfactory thing in life Zenobir, saying nothing of other ancient is success. It sounds paradoxical to say so, but it is profoundly true. The only thing about it that is worth the having the sexes. If no utterances of theirs to is the struggle for it, and when it is atthis effect are extant, their careers can tained the predominant feeling is a question as to whether it is worth the effort. Nine successful men out of ten, if they told the truth, would say that it was not, still if they had to live their lives over again they would struggle every bit as hard, because it was in them to do it and the struggle was the only part of the game worth having. It kept them alive, and once so successful that nothing lay ahead, they become morbid, dissatisfied and re-tless.

AT THE National Industrial Exhibition in Milan was exhibited an electrical voting apparatus, designed by Signor Roncelli, a member of the Italian Par-liament. The idea is simply as follows: Each member of the house has in front of him a metal plate bearing his name. The plate is furnished with three metal buttons, marked respectfully, "Aye,"
"No" and "Abstain." This plate is in connection with a central printing apparatus, which prints in three separate columns the yeas, noes and abstainers, according as the members depress their respective buttons, A fourth column marks the absentees. At the moment of recording each vote, a number corresponding with the number of the vote appears, so that the total may be seen at a glance. By this system, members can vote and keep their seats, a great saving of time being thus affected.

A Wholesale Co-Operative Society.

An interesting account of the progress of the Wholesale Co-Operative Society has been published by the Manchester Guardian, and some of its particulars are worth reproducing for the lesson they convey. The society was established in 1863, and is a federation of retail co-operative societies carrying on business all over England and Wates, At its start it had a capital of only £909, and did business in its first year to the extent of but £5,962. Only forty societies were embraced in it, with an aggregate membership of 17,545. According to its balance-sheet, made up at the 25th of June last, 618 different societies have now got shares in it, and 778 purchase their goods through it. Its capital, share, loan and reserve, is now £563,907, and the last quarter's sales amounted to £862,000, those for the whole year being £3,389,000. During the seventeen years of its existence this society has done a business of nearly £26,000,000 at a cost of only £362,786, or £1 8s. 1d. per cent., its net profits in the same period averaging £1 4s. 2d. per cent., which was enough to pay the b per cent. fixed interest on the capital and an average dividend of 81 per cent, in addition. The society has buyers in Ireland, Rouen and New York, and latterly Copenhagen; it possesses two manufactories of boots and shoes-one in Leicester and one in Heckmondwicke, but these have caused some disputes as to the allocation of profits, the workmen declaring that the profits of labor ought not to be divided on the same basis as the profits of the distributing trade. The society, however, is evidently in a flourishing condition, although it has departed in some measure from its strictly cash payment principle in lending money to subsidiary retail societies. It is the banker of 120 of these retail stores as well as their source of supply, and has advanced the money gathered from its richer adherents in that capacity to the poorer. In this there must be considerable risk, but, apart from danger of this kind, the great business thus founded appears to offer a favorable example of what may be done by co-operation,-Pall Mall Gazette.

FACTS ABOUT UMBRELLAS.

Antiquarians say that the umbrella was invented shortly after the flood, and has been the least improved upon of all appliances for human comfort, the shape being now as it was in those youthful days of the world. An umbrella is much like a pigeon as to the question of possession—the last one who gets it owns it. The following facts about umbrellas—especially the last one—may serve every reader a splendid purpose sooner or later: To place your umbrella in a rack indicates that it is about to change owners. An umbrella carried over a woman, the man getting nothing but drippings of the rain, indicates courship. When the man has the umbrella and the woman the drippings, it indicates marriage. To carry it at right angles under your arm signifies that an eye is to be lost by the man who follows you. To put a cotton umbrella by the side of anice silk one signifies that "exchange is no robbery." To lend an umbrella signifies that "I am a fool." To carry an umbrella just high enough to tear out men eyes and knock off men's hats, signifies "I am a woman." To go without an umbrella in a rain-storm shows I am sure of getting rheumatism, and will have to use St. Jacons On to get well." To keep a fine umbrella for your own use and a bottle of St. Jacons On niways in the house, in case of rheumatism or accident, would signify that you are real philosopher.

The following communication to the editor of the Salem (Mass.) Register shows how an artist treated his visitor: "I would have accepted your kind invitation to visit you in your new quarters with pleasure before this had not my old enemy, Mr. Rheumatism, pounced on me so suddenly. He arrived last Friday, and, without stopping to send up his card, rushed in and grasped me by the hand with such a grip that in a few hours my hand and wrist were so badly swollen and painful that I felt as though one of Mr. Hatch's coal teams had run over me. Mr. Rheumatism has been a constant visitor of mine for several years; he always swells and put on a great many airs, making himself at home, devouring my substance and leaving me poor in flesh and pocket. Last winter he came and stayed two months. I then decided that the next time he came I would change his diet. I was somewhat at a loss what to feed him with, but finally concluded to give him three square meals a day of St. Jacons Oil, morning, noon and night. This fare he is disgusted with, and is packing up his trunk and will leave by to-morrow or next day; says he cannot stop any longer, as he has pressing business else where. He is a treacherous fellow, and he intends visiting some of our Salem friends; if he does, just give him the same fare that I did and he won't stop long.
